DAILY NEWS.

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1865.

LOCAL MATTERS.

To orr City Subscribers .- We would be thankful if there is any failure on the part of our carriers to deliver the Daily News, if our city subsembers would give us immediate notice. Every efort on our part will be made to secure an early delivery, and if the carriers fail in doing their duty, we hope to be immediately informed of it.

MANAGERS OF ELECTIONS .- This Board met yeslorday afternoon at Masonic Hall, a majority being present. The subject of their decision made at the last meeting being brought forward, it was claborately discussed, and the views of many distisguished gentlemen, "learned in the law," were mentioned. After an interchange of opinions among them, the Board agreed that their former decisions should be annulled, and that all should be allowed to vote at the forthcoming election who possessed the qualifications of a voter which the law required in 1860.

THE WEATHER .- We have now visiting us those sudden and heavy showers of rain, lasting but a few minutes, that usually precede the equinoctial gale. The clouds for some days have been rapidly coming in from the eastward, and we should not be surprised to see, in a short time, a heavy blow.

NORTHEASTERN RAILROAD .- We are informed that the trains apon this road leave the city on Sundays at the same hours as on other days.

SOUTH CAROLINA RAILROAD.—By a dispatch to the General Superintendent of this Road (Mr. H. T. PEAKE), we learn that the bridge over the Congarce River was completed at twenty minutes of five o'clock on Thursday last. There are now only a few gaps to be repaired on the road, when full communication will be had with Columbia.

CLEARANCE FOR LIVERPOOL .- The British bark Exchange, Capt. Churchill, will be cleared this day for Liverpool, by Messrs. Will & Chisolm. This is the first vessel that has taken cargo from here for a foreign port since the blickade has been relieved. Her cargo consists of on hundred and seventy-nine (179) bales of Sea Island, and eight hundred and forty-two (842) bales of Upland Cotton, valued at about two hundred thusand ($200,000) dollars. The same house are alsoloading the British bark Irma, which vessel wil be ready with dispatch; and they are momentarily expecting a third vessel, which will be placed in the berth to load for Liverpool as soon as she arrives. They intend to keep up a line from this port to the great English cotton mart.

OMNIBUS LINE .- We take great pleasure in an nouncing to the public generally that an Omnibus Line will be placed upon our streets at once, by Messrs. Loring & Co., proprietors of the Merchants' Hotel.

This accommodation is greatly needed by the citizens of our city, and we trust will be fully sustained. The Line will commence running on Monday next, September 4th, and will be called the King and Meeting-street Line. It will commence on King at Spring-street, run down King to Hasel, down Hasel to Meeting-street, and down Meetingstreet to the Battery. For the present they will run each way every half hour.

RAILEGADS .- In olden days, when communica tion existed between places of importance through wehicles and horses, or by vessels, our ancestors were a patient, quiet race, who did things slowly but surely, and did well arraything they unactions. They did not, like the settlers of New Amsterdam, it is true, when a matter was to be un dertaken, seat themselves in their broad breeches, and not attempt the performance of it until half a dozen pipes were smoked out, and just then obdozen pipes were smoked out, and just then obtain a gleaning of what was to be done; but they proceeded carefully and regularly in all their affairs, and their method has been handed down, in family tradition, from the elder, as a shining light captured by the control of the family tradition, from the elder, as a shining light to guide the young in whatever pursuit they might adopt. At this day, when we look back at their proceedings, we wonder how it was possible men could be satisfied with so slow an existence, with such a want of energy in their actions, and such an inactivity in their business pursuits. Yet, we doubt not, they imagined that all they did was done with the rapidity which the times required and called upon them for; and certainly they were right in their imagination, for haste, at that time, was not requisite in any of the occupations of life. Owners of vessels were satisfied with monthly trips, that may now be made every other day, and stage contractors run their vehicles hebdominally to places that now are visited in two hours. Bales and boxes which took a month to reach their destination, with great uncertainty attached, now, ir a short period of time, are placed before your door, almost as surely as the daily rising of the sun is looked for. These slow characteristics of the olden time, in comparison with the great speed of modern days, gives cause of reflection, and makes us desire to know what has made this revolution, which is none other than the mighty difference between the system of travel which then existed, and the hurry, haste, and bustle which meets us at every step. Speed, in the transit of goods and the conveying of passengers, spreads an activity in every community which has a connection with such means of rapidly transporting the goods or persons, and infuses into all around a life and energy that was not supposed to have existed before; and the best evidence of the strength of the old time and the people of the present day this assertion is the relative position of the men of ch" system, while our quick, rapid, energetic habits have been made to spring up by the introduction of the lightning speed of the railroad. Wherever the iron horse is seen, his track is followed by a rapid increase of population and business—he can people desorts, and he can fill the prairie with habitations; and all this he can do with a rapidity hitherto unknown.

If our fathers had had an acquaintance with railroads, what, at this time, would have been the rate of speed in all things? The thought is overwhelming !

DAWSON & BLACKMAN.—This old established and well-known firm present a card in our issue of this morning, to which we desire the attention of our readers. The reputation of these gentlemen is so high and so extensive, that a mere announcement of their having fully re-entered into business, is sufficient to bring to them a return of their old custom.

A CORONER'S INQUEST was held yesterday, 1st September, at Magazine lot, Charleston, on the body of Smart Moses (colored). Verdict, "Death from dropsy."

Also, an inquest at Thompson's row, America street, on the body of Sarah (colored infant). Verdict, "That it came to its death from natural

THE RISING SUN, SEPTEMBER 2 .- The sun rises this morning, at 5.37 o'clock, and precisely at this hour will the "Rising Sun," at the Southwest corner of King and Broad-streets, reopen for the convenience and accommodation of the public. The many friends of J. H. BREDENBERG, the proprietor—and their name is legion—will be pleased to read this paragraph, and report as heretofore at the old post. As was always usual at the Rising Sun, a most choice selection of beverages has been selected for this occasion.

CENTRAL ICE CREAM GARDEN.-We perceive, by an advertisement in another column, that this popular resort will shortly be closed. A Promenade Concert will, however, be given on Monday evening next, which will be as attractive as usual
